Story Told by Boys.

Rari Telschler, a hard-working German, who lives at No. 349 East Thirteenth street, left her father's flat to news spread that a man had been arrested even on the faintest of suspinors. Nevertheless, the news did was a pretty little thing, with blue spread.

"She wore a red frock and a small hat, and over the frock a small apron. At dusk she didn't come is. The father searched the neighbor for her all night. He sent do to the child's uncle, John Bauer, borhood for her all night. He sent the child's uncle, John Bauer, de, and Bauer came down to the word to the child's uncle, John Bauer, a cripple, and Bauer came down to the cast side from his home in the Bronx to help in the search.

There was no trace of the missing child, and on the next day, which was shart Friday, the two men reported the disappearance at the nearest station house. A general alarm was sent out.

Blince Monday neither of the two men has slept at all. They were being driven frantic by the stories that filled the papers of assaults on girls and children, of kidnappings and nameis child be printed, and the two of them made a house-to-house Search of the week he visited the identical basement where the body was found to the most of the holp of the week he visited the identical basement where the body was found way in a radius of ten blocks. In his desperation the father had the cards struck off early in the week, and with his own hands he stuck one of them up within a stone's throw of the place where his child's body lay.

Please Wins Easily.

Please is a shifty filty. To-day she followed the pace to the stretch and cam eaway easily. Marbles made the pace the greater part of the journey, but was evidently short. She looked a sure place winner at the sixteenth pole, but Englander on William H. Lyon put it on Eddle Dugan at the finish, getting up by a whisker. Please was a well-played even-money favorite.

Gallop for Nimbus. The fifth raile was only a gallop for Nimbus. He jumped away in front and opened up his usual gap of five lengths. He stood Castlewood on his head in the first sixteenth. Red Bonnet ran an improved race and got the place easily from Monopolist.

"Books" Lost Heavily. The "books" lost heavily on the last race, when Eldorado, backed from 15 to 3, won all the way easily and never leaving the race in doubt. The coup was one of the best pulled off at the meeting. Eldorado opened up a gap and the others could never catch him.

With her long, clean lines and her race-horse model, she looked more like a great sea-going yacht than a carry-all for commuters. Suddenly out from behind the bulky ferry-house of the Central of New Jersey, at the foot of Liberty street, came the brindle-colored Red Bank, waddling along like a market woman as she cleared her slip on the 9.30 trip to Communipaw. The Sandy Hook boat was only a few score yards out in the stream and there was no time to change her course. There wasn't even time to sound any whisties of warning. Before the pilot of the ferry-boat could make a move he was right across the bow of the Asbury Park. As it happened, Capt. Lersen was forward on the Asbury Park to direct the landing.
